Excerpts from theoretical texts:

"For women", there is an invisible geography of urban space. This was a component of the city in a way that men never saw - fear and violence. The city is constructed in a patriarchal (male) way - Rhythms of Fear, by Lara Meni

Comment by Nina Hallström on Fossal:

"There must be awareness of something that has never been considered - individuals are always in a position of vulnerability when they walk on the streets. -社会学"

Circumscribing power relations are reflected in everyday life: the distribution of power where the active cannot be transformed. "Power/knowledge" phase, but it is an exercise, not an imagined one. How do we understand the logic? But there is something that is common to all, when point of power which are available to those in power, and that are not the same. - Nina Hallström
